

Be! an Entrepreneur

‘Sunlight’

In Katputli Colony, a crowded slum in New Delhi lives a young girl called Tara, she is 18 years old. Katputli Colony is an illegal slum and has become home to thousands of artists, they are jugglers, puppeteers, dancers, drum players, they perform at various occasions and festivals. Most people use kerosene lamps to light their houses at night and to make their puppets and also for their performances. Kerosene is expensive, not easily available and the fumes of Kerosene are making many people in the community sick. Tara is an entrepreneur, she finds that Solar lanterns are clean and powerful source of electricity. With the support of other girls in her community she rents solar lanterns to residents in the area and to street vendors, bringing light to an unauthorized colonies and light transforms everything in the community.
