

BRINGING THE TRIBES TOGETHER AFTER THE POST ELECTIONS VIOLENCE THROUGH SPORTS

After the post elections violence Sports development in africa (Spodia) a sporting organization based in Kimumu in Eldoret east thought it wise to start some sports tournaments to bring all the communities together. At first it was very hard to convince a Kalenjin to play against a Kikuyu or play in the same team. After much talking and lobbying some were willing to play. we made some rules that any team that was willing to participate in our tournament must have at least ~~three~~ ^{four} players from different tribes. The tournament was very successful and the the players forgot their differences and played together as a team and celebrated when they won and were all sad when they lost. After that we organised teams from Kikumu community to visit the Kalenjin community and vice versa this thing really worked and has brought youth together.

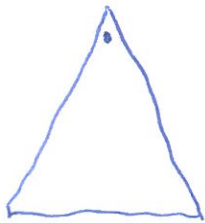

they discuss issues affecting them together and all of them are saying that whatever happened after the post elections should not happen again.
