Kick Off—Imani House Mobile Clinic to the Rescue

When government health workers went on strike in September because they had not been paid, Imani House, stretched our finances and took our health workers and one of our ambulances on the road. We provided treatment, health screenings, information and referrals to our Clinic. Monrovia, the capital and it's environs is struggling with overpopulation and congestion. A majority of the people are faced with poor governmental infrastructures including health, education, sanitation and other essential services. While it is a small effort, our medical staff felt they had to do something. The IHI Clinic has provided Health care services even through civil war, Ebola and turmoil.

Literacy Determined—Learning by Light

38 year old Massah Sonkarlay joined our literacy program two years ago. Ms. Sonkarlay says, "My mother was a market women and I fell in her footsteps. The difference is that my mother did not make money to send me to school. But I send all my children to school because now I can add, subtract, read, write and sign my own name thanks to Imani House. I am not losing money now and my market is growing." Massah does her marketing during the day and attends our classes at night. One of our challenges is the provision of adequate lighting in some of our classrooms. Determined to do her lessons, Massah decided to use her cell phone light instead.
