

What is the Cancer CARES program?

THE PROGRAM

Women diagnosed with cancer have many decisions to make (often quickly) and changes in their life. While medical centers may have the resources for treatment options, there is not a lot of support for the other issues that come up, e.g.—How do you talk to your family and friends? How do you answer the question, “Why is mommy going bald?” When a young mother came to us looking for employment after losing her job due to her cancer diagnosis, we realized we needed a program to encompass ALL of the questions and challenges women and their families face during and post-treatment.

WHY & HOW?

There is no program like this in the area. While medical facilities provide treatment option resources, their support does not go far beyond that. We want to create a warm, comfortable, inviting space for women and their families to find resources, information, join our support groups, and find employment. We have trained professionals in our Center that have specific skills to help women battling cancer. These resources are FREE to all women and families.
