

WAFA WATER AIR FOOD AWARDS

About Water Air Food Awards

Access to clean water, air, and food is a universal right.

Founded in 2008, WAFA is a non-profit staffed by a team of international academics, professionals, executives, and other committed individuals. WAFA is a signatory to the UN Global Compact, the EU Brussels Declaration Pledge to Peace, member of World Green Design Organization and contributes to UN Sustainability Development Goals.

Water Air Food Awards (WAFA) identifies outstanding sustainability pioneers around the world who are ensuring that the basic human need of access to clean water, air and food is met, celebrates their achievements, raises their global profile, and facilitates productive partnerships. Through its network and global media, WAFA invites applications for Awards in the categories of water, air and food security.

A selection committee of international experts evaluates nominees according to recognized sustainability criteria. Based on their recommendations, WAFA posts a shortlist of qualifying projects and invites the global public to vote for them.

Award Criteria

Empowerment: To what extent do community members participate?

Impact: How does the project spur community development?

Innovation: How effectively does it introduce new approaches and technologies?

Replicability: How can it be modelled in other areas and countries?

Scalability: What is the growth potential?

Sustainability: Can it last on its own?

A searchable database of projects is being developed, with an eye on creating an on-line platform where corporations, philanthropists, and impact investors can explore win-win collaborations with the award candidates and their local communities. Want to know more..? Give us a call..
