Careers in Finance Panel Session

Pictured below, our fellows had the opportunity to discuss careers in finance with Zimbabwean professionals from the World Bank, KPMG, and an Analyst from a leading US pension fund. Our fellows were exposed to different global finance careers through panelists describing their roles in their current position and what a typical day is like for them at work. An example was of a typical day for an infrastructure finance specialist at the World Bank working with governments around the world helping them raise finance for large infrastructure development projects in their respective countries. Importantly, the panelists explained to the students what it took for them to get from high school in Zimbabwe through to a high flying career in finance and professional services.
