Organization Summary

EMERGINATION AFRICA

What We Do....

African public high schools lack global tertiary education and career counseling services that assist students in making informed decisions about their futures after high school.

In the spring of 2013, the Emerging Fellows (EF) program was created to promote the global educational and professional growth of high school students in Africa. This is achieved through our integrated online platform that provides virtual global career and college advisement sessions with individuals from around the world!

Through our four pillars, Emergination Africa has worked with over:

- 75 Emerging Fellows across 13 schools
- 60 college mentors across 6 universities
- 20 professionals within technology, business, and science sectors

Our Mission

To advance Africa's transformation through global skill transfers and educational mentorship.

Our Vision

To be the pinnacle global youth organization developing young African students to create opportunities for themselves and others.

“ Never had it crossed my mind that I would be so civically engaged but because EA has been helping and mentoring me, through even the most challenging of my life experiences, a once unachievable feat has become my reality. ”

Kuda Nyamupinga -- Emerging Fellow Class of 2014

Program Pillars

College Admissions Guidance

We connect our Fellows to our active network of college student mentors around the world in order to provide quality mentorship on the college application process.

Global Networking

Through our interactive Global Career Video Panel sessions, Fellows get to develop their global mindset and deeply engage with professionals from around the world on a variety of careers and topics.

Professional Development

Through our active network of professionals, our Fellows receive the opportunity to develop their professional etiquette and skill set to be successful globally.

Community Development

We partner our students with social enterprises to learn the theory and practice of social entrepreneurship and give them the opportunity for volunteering.

Fellows meet associates from Google's New York office and learn about careers in technology

One can catch a glimpse of hope when looking into the eyes of a young person. A hope that they will be better than their previous familial generation; a hope of finding unexplored territories of technological, science, and business advancements; A hope in simply going to school and making their mothers and fathers proud. I am a part of Emergination Africa because I not only see the hope in our young people's minds, but I have that same hope. I hope to aspire our youth to be productive, goal oriented professionals.

– Samantha Kelly EA -- Executive Secretary

"I am honored to be part of the organization that cares about the future leaders of tomorrow by investing its resources in young students. I have continued to support this organization primarily due to my passion to be involved in mentorship and to see my fellow young Zimbabweans making a difference in this world. Truly those involved with this organization can be assured that they have put a step in the right direction to a brighter future."

– Innocent Shumba
Partner Ernst & Young, San Jose, California

Nancy Guzha, VP of Unilever Southern Africa, delivers an empowering speech on mentorship

Fellows meet analysts from Deloitte's Atlanta office and discuss careers in Management Consulting

"What binds us is a common passion to advance Africa's transformation in becoming a self-sufficient continent for generations to come. What drives us is the prospect of this transformation being driven by young path bending Africans with a global mindset and cosmopolitan outlook of the world."

–Taku Machirori
EA Founder and Executive Director

“ EA helped me to start thinking about my future and how important it is for me to be involved in my community. Through the support of my EA mentors I received a full scholarship to Cottey College in Missouri. ”
