YRS is a non-profit, non-government organization. we were founded in 1999 and have provided free education programs and donation-based health services focusing on sexual and reproductive health services focusing on sexual and reproductive health since 2004. We work in Bali's traditional markets because they are the centre of Balinese community life.

Our Vision

To create a healthy generation through women's empowerment.

Reproductive Health in Bali

In Indonesia every one hour, one women die because of cervical cancer and every two hours three women diagnosed cervical cancer (2017) and more than 70 percent of cervical cancer cases are detected at the late stages (2014).

Although most STI's cases are among "high-risk groups". Women suffer more severe consequences of STI's than men (e.g. impaired fertility and health) due to biological vulnerability to infection and the lack of early symptoms in many woman.

Women tend to put low priority on their health problems, falling to allocate time and money for health care, especially preventive care. They also tend to have less access to information than men and be less empowered to protect.
