From the Secretary Desk

True aim of education is to prepare a person to play his part successfully as an enlightened member of the society. Education means integrated development of personality. It should therefore impart training to hand, head and heart. A large number of committees and commissions have been appointed and rapid and sweeping changes have been made both in the structure and contents of education.

Excellence in every aspect is the coveted aim of education and this tradition is religiously maintained in SHRESTHA.

It is our deep conviction that education needs to be a joyful experience that facilitates the growth and transformation of young minds at their impressionable age and fortifies them with the required knowledge and skills to face the challenges of the competitive world. We are aware that in making this effort we are drawing inspirations from the primeval source of our national culture and rich heritage. This is also required continuity of thought and a quickened pace of executions. To keep pace with this rapidly changing world and to stay abreast with changing knowledge paradigms, it is essential to become a pedagogue.

We believe that every child has a talent. His own strength, which if fostered in a caring environment, will lead to success. We aim to provide a lively, warm and purposeful atmosphere for the pursuit of excellence.

We prepare each child for a life with enduring volume and conviction, to equip them with the capacity for intellectual thinking as well as
