

CWEFT

Concordia Welfare & Education Foundation—Thailand

CWEFT was established to meet the needs of underprivileged children, families, and communities throughout Thailand. We believe education to be the path out of poverty and a gateway to opportunities for a better life.

Concordia Day Care & Community Center

Bangkok, Central Thailand

2,428 people served

Children in the day care

After school programs and Saturday classes for school aged children

The CDCC (Concordia Day Care & Community Center) has served the children and families of the Bangna slum community in Bangkok for 29 years. This program assists the most vulnerable of all ages in the community. Through assorted CDCC programming, residents of the slum receive the education and training they need to break the cycle of poverty and achieve their full potential.

Support for the sick and disabled in the community

Special activities and field trips during school break

Hostel Outreach

Educational support program

Chiang Mai & Chiang Rai, Northern Thailand

5,014 people
served

A big obstacle to regular school attendance is lack of adequate transportation. Hostel Program students receive daily support in getting to school.

The Hostel Outreach program serves at-risk children, families, and communities in Northern Thailand. These student centers serve provide food, shelter, educational supplies and basic medical care in a supportive, nurturing environment.

Children in the program come from poor, undeveloped, and isolated mountain villages where they are at risk for human trafficking and other serious social issues, including drugs and prostitution.

Due to limited educational opportunities in these remote villages, families often send their children to urban areas at very young ages to study. Many young children in this situation are unable to thrive on their own or with very little supervision and rarely finish their studies.

CWEFT's hostel projects provide a safe and stable home away from home for these children as they receive an education. The hostels work closely with the children's families, as well as local communities, in meeting this vital need for education.

Children also learn important life skills to support themselves and their families. This includes various self-sufficient agricultural projects at different student centers.

Community Development

Focused outreach for communities in need
Central, Northern, and Southern Thailand

13,611 people served

Community development projects are identified in cooperation with community and government officials. The projects provide assistance and support to at-risk individuals and communities throughout the country. This past year, community development programming provided health trainings, eyeglass clinics, clean water projects, safe housing, children's literacy program, supplemental educational opportunities, and construction of a children's center.

Volunteer Support

Enhancing CWEFT initiatives

Central, Northern, and Southern Thailand

Local and international volunteers are a key aspect to project development and success at CWEFT initiatives across the country. Volunteers support CWEFT projects in a variety of ways, offering their talents and time in support of the children and families we serve.
