

Dear R,

Thank you for hosting Uma Thiagarajan at BUDDHA OUTCAST SOCIAL SOCIETY - BOSS in June! GlobalGiving's site visits are an important part of our work, and our team is always so excited to be able to meet, support, and learn from our nonprofit partners in the field. So, thank you for being a part of this program this year! Our In-the-Field traveler Uma Thiagarajan wanted to share some feedback about their experience with you, and hopefully give you some valuable content. Please see below for Uma Thiagarajan's thoughts about BUDDHA OUTCAST SOCIAL SOCIETY - BOSS's programs, how you may be able to use GlobalGiving more effectively, and a quote about their experience for you to use.

We'd also love to hear how you feel your experience went! Please click the link below to fill our a survey about the site visit:

Note from the In-the-Field Traveler
Special thanks to Mr. Balu and family who took all the effort to make me feel comfortable. I thoroughly enjoyed my time with everyone at Adaiyur.

Recommendation for how to better use GlobalGiving
BOSS is a budding organisation on GlobalGiving, below are few tips BOSS can follow to effectively fundraise in our platform.

1. Read articles on how to story tell and try them for the upcoming project.
2. Put up engaging pictures on the project page. This will help the donors connect to the project
3. Spend more time on GG Rewards. This will ensure that the organisation gets more visibility.

Feedback on your programs
BOSS has done great work in the past years and the service is continued by the team every year irrespective of the resource crunch.
Few suggestions for BOSS are,
1. To recruit a fundraising person or have a part time volunteer who can help with the content for your project.
2. Think about receiving testimonials from individuals who have benefitted from the program and adding that to our GlobalGiving report will add more credibility among the donors.

Quote from the In-the-Field Traveler
Mr, Balu is a graduate who chose to work for his community need and has been trying his best with the limited resources. Here is wishing him a lot more success in all his projects.
