Campaign Title:

GIVE THIS WOMEN GROUP MODERN SHEA BUTTER CENTRE

Women kneading Shea butter in a traditional way

THE ISSUE

Traditional Shea butter processing is tedious and energy sapping making most women to shy away from it. Consequently, women in Bole district collect Shea nuts and sell the raw nuts, earn one-time income at low price and remain unemployed and poor during the off farm season. To address this challenge, PTSIF with the support of UNDP in collaboration with MESTI is constructing two community cluster Shea butter processing centres for the women to add value to their products through processing. The centres will be equipped with modern machines to eliminate the burden on the women and increase output. To help complete the two projects, this campaign targets to raise an additional amount of Twenty Five Thousand Ghana Cedis (GHC25,000) or Five Thousand US Dollars ($5000). Task shared is easily done. If 200 people worldwide donate $30 US Dollars each or GHC150 Ghana Cedis each, the target of 5000 US dollars will be achieved. Be part of the process to lift up the poor.

ABOUT PTSIF

PTSIF is an active advocacy, social services and livelihood organization that works to provide spaces for equal participation in the economic and social opportunities spaces in Ghana in a gender sensitive and inclusive manner. Besides other programs, we commenced a project to increase awareness of cervical cancer among girls, women and their spouses. The purpose of this project is to bring to the attention of target population, knowledge and available screening, treatment, care and preventive opportunities available in the environment. Currently, we are an implementing partner of an advocacy project that seeks to promote marginalised women access and control of Shea Parklands to guarantee their long term investment. We are implementing this project in three districts in the northern part of Ghana namely North Gonja, East Mamprusi Municipal and Kasena Nankana Municipal. Under this project, we are building the capacity of the women leaders in advocacy skills to champion the change themselves. Together with the women, community sensitization programs have been done in three districts. We have also facilitated projects that have led to poor women having increased access to low cost credit to finance their microbusinesses as either peasant farmers or petty traders. In partnership with the Ministry of Science Technology and Innovation of Ghana and with a small grant contribution from United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) we are currently implementing a livelihood project in Bole District where we are development four Shea butter processing Centres in four Communities as part of the Climate Adaption project of the UNDP.
