

The pandemic has made our work even more valuable in Nepal.

“Child labor, child trafficking and even child marriages on the rise due to pandemic induced poverty. Based on the national data of Nepal’s Central Bureau of Statistics for 2021, among the 7 million children between the age of 5 and 17 in Nepal, 1.1 million (15.3%) children are subjected to child labor.” [https://www.nepalnews.com/s/issues/poverty-leading-to-child-labor-in-nepal]

What we have learned from Covid-19 is that we are very much dependant on help from each other, and that by caring for one another we not only help the other person, but we are also helping ourselves.

Poverty leading to child labor in Nepal

Our team in Nepal supported by sponsors from around the world is making a real difference in the lives of kids who would otherwise have no opportunity.

Your gift makes a real difference.

It is such a delight to see a child we met in year 7 now working as a doctor in Nepal, and it is such stories that inspire us to continue supporting kids and their families so that they too have an opportunity to shine.

IGWR is run by caring volunteers and that means that 99.52% of all monies donated goes directly to the operations of IGWR-Nepal

Over the last twelve years we’ve given well over one hundred children a future, children who had no chance of an education are now nurses, bank employees, hospitality professionals, physiotherapists and that year 7 schoolkid is now helping others.

We know we can make a difference, and more than that, we know that it is possible for individuals from around the world to change the very nature of the world.

As governments focus on ‘defence budgets’ we look toward a better tomorrow, one in which we are all cared for, because we care for all.

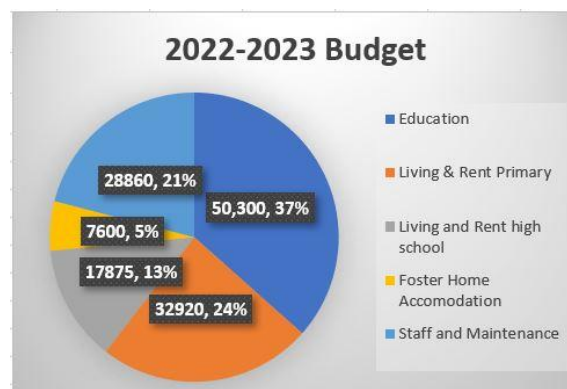

Giving families the chance to stay together

Many of the kids we support live in a rented room with a single mum, and mum has to work in order to live, sometimes the kids are also forced to work.

But with our support, we can help both mum and her children, giving the kids the opportunity for good schooling and eventually breaking the cycle of poverty that the family are in.

Our budget for the year ahead is $137,555

And with the support of many from all around the world, we are confident that our work will continue and that the kids will thrive.

NEWS Highlights

1. Congratulation Ayog, Sachet and Suraksha for securing B+ in Grade 9 and Good luck for your Grade 10 studies.
2. Our 'Foster Home' for two special needs girls is beautiful. Sharda, mother to one of the girls, no longer has to work as we support her as full-time carer, and so the girls are blossoming in a family situation rather than the institutional care which was the only other option.
3. Seven girls will start college this year seeking degrees in business management, social work and hotel management,
4. And one of last year's college graduates has just got married

I thought I couldn't make a difference because I was too small.
Greta Thunburg

With your support we give these kids a chance, and we follow them through till they find work and can fly on their own. We make a difference, and in turn, so they too will make a difference and bring about a better tomorrow, one in which we can all rejoice.

So, thank you for sharing in making the world a better place for all.
