Testimonial from Yllza Vila, 17, Hani i Elezit

The reason why this project will always be dear to me is that I have invested in my self and my community's development. The training sessions in spring were extremely meaningful to me and that's because, throughout these sessions, I have gained the freedom to speak up in front of a big group of people, and I have gained tremendous self-confidence.

I developed my skills in managing a group of students, time management, critical thinking, and teamwork. After all these activities, I am not afraid to express my thoughts and ideas.

I have changed a lot and most importantly I have changed one very important idea.

That is that if we work hard enough we can achieve anything, no matter how many obstacles we might encounter along the way. There is also a way to solve a problem and even though we are a small community, all of us together can do a lot!

When I look back to these past months, I am reminded of the last meeting of our Active Citizen's club when we did the group reflection, during which I have never felt more proud of myself and our club members.
