Impact Report
Get Redressed Month 2019

Across Hong Kong, 130 companies, clubs and schools joined our campaign to learn about the impact that fashion has on the environment by donating their unwanted clothes in the Get Redressed Clothing Drive and helping us to redistribute them at the 24 Hour Sort-a-thon. We were also excited to work with 21 schools in 2019, who not only took part in the clothing drive but took advantage of our brand new school resources pack. The campaign also saw public awareness adverts across the MTR and the creation of an online resource hub for consumers. We have loved hearing your feedback and receiving photos of your campaigns - from donation boxes, holding Get Redressed Days to celebrating wearing and sharing what we have instead of buying new, and even holding your own secondhand clothing markets - every story is just one step in bringing about positive change in our attitudes to how we consume and dispose of fashion.

In October 2019 Redress hosted our second and biggest ‘Get Redressed Month’ to date, turning October into the official month to take action against textile waste and keep our clothes in use for longer.

Redress would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their time, donations and support. We could not have created such an impactful campaign without the generous support of our sponsors Li & Fung, Swire Community Caring Fund, Swire Properties, DBS Bank, KPMG, Redbox Storage, LKF Group, PizzaExpress, Eat Natural, IKEA, MANA!, Peroni, Sofe.Coffee and Urban Spring.
Christina Dean, Founder and Chair of Redress, explains, "What we have done through our Get Redressed campaign is to provide a mirror on the problems and solutions of what is a global issue. Clothing waste rates have hit the roof - the equivalent of one garbage truck of textiles are landfilled or incinerated every second¹. We need consumers to immediately recognise their role; by being more responsible with their consumption, keeping their clothes in use for longer, before finally putting their unwanted clothes into the recycling system, and not into landfill."

Stats in a Nutshell

Whilst the volume of clothing collected throughout Get Redressed Month is a significant achievement, the true impact is the number of people, both young and old, who have engaged with the campaign to drive a circular future for fashion.

Get Redressed Clothing Drive

We had a total of 187 collection points for unwanted clothing in this year’s Get Redressed Clothing Drive, including public-facing collection points hosted by Swire Properties, Gap Inc., Lush, Lan Kwai Fong Group, emmanuel.f, Edgar, RedBox and PizzaExpress.

We do still have a few more boxes trickling in, but at the last count we had 390 boxes returned to us totalling over 15.4 tonnes! That is the equivalent of 2.5 elephants or 9.5 cars!

First Ever Get Redressed Sort-a-thon at Swire Properties’ Berkshire House

The culmination of our Get Redressed Month campaign was our first ever “Sort-a-thon”, held on 21 and 22 November. It involved six four-hour clothes-sorting sessions with corporate and community volunteers across two 12-hour days at Berkshire House, Taikoo Place. This was the biggest volunteering event Redress has ever hosted, and possibly the biggest sorting event in Hong Kong! The aim of the Sort-a-thon was to sort through all 15.4 tonnes of clothing donations collected in the Get Redressed Clothing Drive in just 24 hours, while bringing volunteers face-to-face with the issue of textile waste and giving them some insight into Redress’ work and the challenges of keeping clothing in use. The 15.4 tonnes of clothing was emptied out into a giant “clothes mountain” which served as a powerful visual reference of the scale of the textile waste problem in Hong Kong. We calculated that 15.4 tonnes is merely one hour’s worth of Hong Kong’s textile waste (at a rate of 370 tonnes of textiles entering Hong Kong’s landfills daily).

The Sort-a-thon involved 419 volunteers from 20 companies and the community, with an overall count of an incredible 2,124 manhours required to weigh and sort the donations into 20 sorting streams, including re-sale, re-use, recycling and downcycling.

Of the 20 different clothing streams at the Sort-a-thon, the charity donation stream is one of the largest and Redress partnered with 19 charities to provide carefully sorted clothing that meets the exact needs of their beneficiaries, as well as each organisation’s individual capacity. Clothing suitable for re-use was donated to the following 19 charities: Castaways Charity Shop (St John’s Cathedral), Christian Action Centre for Refugees, Cornerstone International Church of God, Crossroads, Friends of the Earth, Green Ladies & Green Little, H. K. S. K. H. Tung Chung Integrated Services, Hong Kong Dog Rescue, Impact HK, J Life Foundation, Mission to New Arrivals, Oxfam, Pathfinders, Po Leung Kuk, Remar Association, Ronald McDonald House Charities, Run Hong Kong, The Salvation Army, and YWAM Tuen Mun. “ImpactHK are very proud to partner with Redress. The work they do is outstanding, plus the Get Redressed Sort-a-thon greatly supports our organisation and helps the homeless and less fortunate in Hong Kong,” said Jeff Rotmeyer, Founder of ImpactHK.

Volunteers were treated to live music provided by DJ Mengzy, DJ Benny Cullen, DJ Katie Abrams and DJ Koppa, a chillout area by IKEA, water by Urban Spring, beer by Peroni, cold brew coffee by Sofe.Coffee, energy bars by Eat Natural and food by MANA! and PizzaExpress. 207L of water were drank over the two days and therefore 732 single-use plastic bottles were saved through Get Redressed Sort-a-thon together!

We are pleased to announce the winner of the Best Dressed competition, King & Wood Mallesons, who have won a Peroni Apperitivo Hour for 50 staff members!
An estimated 92 million tonnes of textile waste is generated around the world each year and this figure is expected to increase by 60% between 2015 and 2030\(^2\). China’s recent Singles’ Day on 11 November saw online sales reach a shocking new record of US$38.4 billion in just 24 hours\(^3\), and 2019 Thanksgiving and Black Friday online sales in the US (on 28 to 29 November), predicted a 25 per cent increase from 2018\(^4\). Rising levels of consumption have led to a devastating effect on the planet’s finite resources, so raising awareness is critical to create a shift in consumer mindsets and spark behavioural change en-masse.
The Get Redressed Secondhand Pop-up Shop will be back in early February next year, and will be overflowing with Redress’ favourite secondhand and sample stock outfits, carefully selected from the clothes donated during the Get Redressed Month clothing drive. The Pop-up Shop will offer men’s, women’s and children’s clothes and accessories from designer, vintage and high street brands with prices starting at just HK$50. Choosing to shop secondhand with Redress not only helps reduce the carbon footprint of the garment by 82%, all money raised through Pop-up Shop sales provide critical support for Redress’ work to reduce textile waste, minimise energy and water consumption and ultimately promote a circular economy for fashion.
