PROJECT Soar

Project Soar (PS) is a non-profit organization registered in Morocco and in the U.S. as a 501(c)3. Founded in 2013, PS aims to empower more of the world's underserved adolescent girls through a scalable and signature girl's empowerment program. This program called Project Soar in a Box is based off the 5 Pillars of Empowerment which embody our beliefs that every girl realizes her

Value, Voice, Body, Rights, and Path.

2,386 Empowered Girl Leaders	174 Female Facilitators	48 Current sites 82 total squads	119,300 Hours of Empowerment Workshops	38 Girl Leader Clubs

THE Problem

Adolescent girls are the most vulnerable and marginalized group on the planet today. These girls face the double discrimination of being female and young; it's no wonder that worldwide they are in crisis. 32+ million adolescent girls globally are out of school: 2-3 times more than boys. Yearly, 16+ million girls become child brides, and many become girl moms and have severe complications related to early childbirth.

THE Solution

Project Soar in a Box consists of 25 signature workshops that enable teen girls to embody the 5 Pillars of Empowerment. As a Project Soar Girl progresses through the program, she undergoes a transformative process whereby she further develops her self-confidence, speaks up, embraces her adolescent body, advocates for her rights and the rights for all girls, and sets future goals.

PROJECT Soar

"I was thinking of dropping out of school and my parents suggested that I get married. After I discovered Project Soar, my ideas completely changed. Now I'm finishing my studies and applying for a good university."

-Chaimae Ehachmi 19 years old, Morocco

"I was asked to be the head girl of my school by my teachers because of my character and excellence in class. I highly attribute this to Project Soar because I was so shy at first that I couldn't even be a class monitor, much less the school's head girl. But everything has changed now. My own confidence amazes me."

- Agnes Adong 15 years old, Uganda
