

WE SUPPORT MORE FAMILIES

In June, a new early childhood programme was launched in the Los Vázquez neighbourhood (Tucumán, Argentina). In a day filled with excitement and enthusiasm, where families actively participated in the meeting, the commitment agreements were signed and the educational kits were handed out. This first step marked the beginning of a journey that aims to strengthen the educational role of adults in the home and provide concrete tools for early childhood support.

Over the following weeks, they began working with the programme's first workbooks, designed to strengthen cognitive, emotional and motor development in everyday life. Through home visits, a close, playful and affective working method is proposed, in which mothers and fathers learn to use the materials through role play, modelled reading and practical demonstrations. Special emphasis is being placed on building a play-learning routine that can be sustained over time, even in homes experiencing economic difficulties or complex circumstances. The focus is on empowering families as primary educators, recognising their knowledge and promoting bonding as a space.

Thank you for continuing to accompany us as we bring education to the families who need it most.
