Iran Academia 2020

Background

The Institute for Social Sciences and Humanities – also known as Iran Academia – was established in 2012 as a qualified online university in response to widespread and systematic violations of academic freedom, including lack of university autonomy, in Iran and as an attempt to empower the Persian speaking community through quality and uncensored education.

AcademiX

In 2018, in order to better bridge the gap between the academic community and civil society, Iran Academia launched a new platform AcademiX. The platform seeks to provide unlimited access to unrestricted free resources in Persian by leveraging the potential of the recently emerged Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) phenomenon.

After much effort, AcademiX has since launched three outstanding MOOCs, on the Economy, Human Rights and on Children's Rights which have attracted over 3,000 participants so far.

We have now pulled together our resources to once again to develop a unique MOOC on the important topic of Transitional Justice.

Transitional Justice

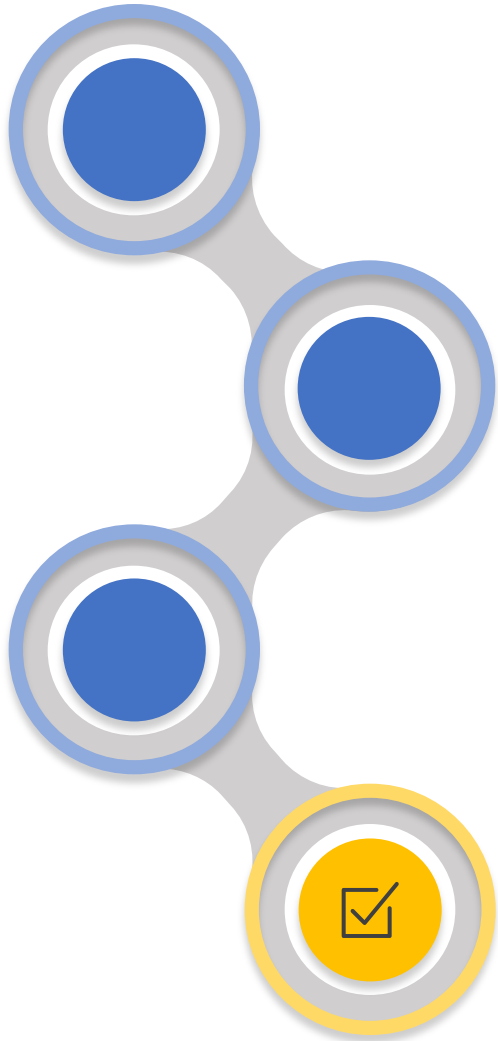

The MOOC will be the first open online course in Persian on transitional justice and will address a critical educational gap in countries with histories of mass atrocities, such as Iran, where people are denied access to education on issues related to accountability and truth-seeking. Iran academia has already advanced on the design and the development of the course, and also identified the academic scholars and practitioners who will be invited to deliver video lectures. These lectures along with other course materials will be made available through Iran Academia's existing infrastructure which has proved successful in delivering high quality online education to large audiences.

Your donations will cover ¼ of the total budget required for the activities defined under this project. Iran Academia will be covering the remainder through its resources and volunteers.

We are seeking your help to ensure that we can successfully implement this important project in 2021!
