BERTHOUD ADAPTIVE PARK PROJECT

COMING SPRING 2023

This project was inspired by five-year-old Miles Bowling

The Berthoud Adaptive Park Project will be a premier destination for children and parents with a wide range of disabilities; ultimately bringing accessibility and inclusion closer to home for many in mid-northern Colorado.

THE PROJECT

An inclusive public playground in Berthoud, CO

Can'd Aid's Treads + Trails program provides tools and access for underserved populations to live healthy and active lives, which makes the Berthoud Adaptive Park Project a perfect opportunity to listen and respond to one community's unique needs.

Inclusivity will be built into as many aspects of the park's development as possible, encouraging integrated play between able-bodied children and those with physical and cognitive challenges – ultimately breaking down barriers to create a truly inclusive space.

and older brother Braxton*

THE STORY

What if the closest playground for your child was 40 minutes away?

The Berthoud Adaptive Park Project is originally inspired by Miles Bowling (5), who was diagnosed with spastic tripegia cerebral palsy at age two. Though not affected cognitively or verbally, Miles is unable to stand or walk by himself, making him dependent on a wheelchair for his mobility, freedom and independence. Currently, the closest ADA accessible playground is 40 minutes away (in Ft. Collins, CO) from his family's home in the developing Farmstead Neighborhood in Berthoud, CO.

WHY SPONSOR?

Though the Farmstead development team is willing to provide both financial and in-kind support, the exorbitant cost of adaptive equipment and surfacing requires additional support.

Select a piece of equipment to sponsor from the list on the following page, or make a flat donation of any size and your support will be utilized to implement a prioritized list of inclusive features and accessible components.

"[Access to a play-ground] will make a difference on the rest of Miles' life. Giving him independence now, giving him inclusion and accessibility now, will show him he is capable and that he can do it."
