UKRAINE CRISIS 100 DAYS

Save the Children

We do whatever it takes to help children before, during and after a crisis.

Drawing on over a century of experience, we've responded immediately since the beginning of the crisis, and will continue to support children and their families to rebuild their lives.

100 days after the crisis escalated, the situation in Ukraine remains dire for children and their families.

In parts of the country, thousands of children remain trapped underground in metro stations, school basements and other forms of bunkers while violence, shelling and bombing continue.

Two-thirds of children have fled their homes and more than 6.6 million people have had to flee to neighbouring countries.

Persistent air strikes and explosions have damaged schools and hospitals, killing civilians and making it hard for children to access health care and safe education.

As the violence continues, children are at risk of devastating trauma from loss and displacement.

Every second, another child becomes a refugee.

HOW YOUR DONATIONS ARE HELPING CHILDREN

With your support, we've been able to reach 210,000 people with life-saving essentials, protection and assistance.

And we continue to respond quickly to a situation that is constantly changing, both in Ukraine and in surrounding countries where families are seeking refuge.

We have been calling for an immediate end of hostilities and for children to be protected, in accordance with international humanitarian law.

We've been operating in Ukraine since 2014. Throughout the 8-year conflict, we've been delivering essential humanitarian aid to children and their families, including winter kits, hygiene kits and cash grants so they can meet basic needs such as food, rent and medicines.

Thanks to your generosity, we will continue our work as long as it takes to help children and their families recover and rebuild their lives.

Kristina* is 14 months old. She travelled with her mother Irina*, 36, and older sister Katia*, 13 from the city of Dnipro, all across Ukraine, over the Polish border, to Kraków where they are now staying temporarily. Kristina's* father stayed behind in Ukraine with her grandmother who refused to leave her home despite the conflict. They hope to return home to Ukraine once it is safe to do so.

In the meantime, they are staying at a reception centre where Save the Children is supporting families and children. Kristina* loves playing in the child friendly space we have set up inside the reception centre. It is filled with toys, games and craft supplies. Kristina* especially enjoys drawing and playing with her favorite cuddly white bear.

We are also providing families like Kristina's* with essential items such as food, hygiene products, clothes and diapers – as well as cash support and educational supplies.

OUR RESPONSE IN THE REST OF EUROPE

We are also working hard to support European hosting countries to welcome children and families who have fled Ukraine. These countries include Denmark, Finland, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

Our response includes:

- Offering emergency shelter and working with local families and businesses to provide temporary safe housing.
- Setting up child friendly spaces in key places, like migration offices, so children can relax and play while waiting to be assisted.
- Working with local authorities to promote children's wellbeing and safety while in temporary housing.
- Connecting refugee families to resettlement services and supportive local communities.
- Providing practical information, legal advice and mental health support to children and their families.
- Influencing the European Union and its member states to create safe and legal routes across Europe for people fleeing the conflict.
