Support the education of 40 women in Quito

Report - October 2026

Our Feminist and Popular Political Education School, which works to strengthen our compañeras as they develop into leaders and popular educators, decided to open up public spaces for analyzing the global political landscape. Over the past five months, we have been organizing monthly gatherings for collective reflection as part of our educational process.

So far, we have welcomed four guest speakers, with whom we have explored diverse issues and contexts, including Palestine, Iran and Cuba.

These gatherings have been deeply enriching for our educational process. They allow us to better understand how imperial dynamics and interests shape our local context and to recognize their impacts on our everyday lives.

We firmly believe that dialogue across differences and encounters between organizations foster an essential exchange of knowledge, helping us create new possibilities for resistance, collective organizing, and growth.

Thank you for believing in our process!
