Support the education of 40 women in Quito

Report - March 2026

For the 2026 edition of our School of Political Feminist and Popular Education, we have created three distinct learning spaces designed to respond to the diverse interests, desires, and curiosities of our participants.

1. The first space continues our ongoing training process, with the aim of supporting a group of participants in becoming popular educators and facilitators, thereby strengthening our collective organizational capacities.

2. The second space is developed in partnership with FLACSO Ecuador. In this school, we explore key concepts for our political formation, such as patriarchy, racism, and different forms of exploitation.

3. The third space, which we call Raíces, brings together participants who wish to share their experiences, knowledge, and long trajectories of life and struggle. This space also includes hands-on and practical learning activities, fostering learning through both practice and collective memory.

Thank you for believing in our process!

All three spaces are grounded in a shared belief: we all hold valuable and diverse forms of knowledge. Through exchange and genuine listening, we can always continue learning from one another.
