PROPOSAL HELP ORPHANED CHILDREN A PLACE OF THEIR OWN

The Bothoor Alkhaer Organization aims, and as part of its humanitarian programs aimed at caring for orphans in Iraq, the Bothoor Alkhaer Organization in the city of Baquba has launched a project to build the orphanage project, which is scheduled to be completed within two years after obtaining official approvals from government agencies.: “The operations of equipping the orphanage in Diyala will be the launch of a donation campaign through this platform that has already started, and we aim through it to embrace dozens of orphaned children and provide them with appropriate services. The cost of building the house is $489,700

The home will provide various services to orphans, including educational services, accommodation, craft courses, psychological support, food and clothing, which they will benefit from in learning a craft that will benefit them and rely on it to earn their livelihood and the sustenance of their families in the future. He pointed out that “the establishment of the home came at the expense of donations and the benefactors and those in charge of it,” considering it a great incentive to continue providing charitable work, which the organization has always done in serving the various segments of society. In a report issued by the United Nations Children's Fund in 2015, the report indicated that about 5 million orphaned children in Iraq lack proper family care, and suffer from physical and psychological diseases, in addition to poverty and deprivation. The internal conflicts and fierce wars that Iraq went through left behind millions of orphaned children who did not have access to the basics of a decent life, in addition to the fact that a large percentage of them joined the labor market to help their families after losing their parents. One of the stories that inspires hope is the story of the establishment of an “orphanage”, which is supervised by the organization as part of its programs. In this house, the organization provides the necessary care, food, drink, and housing for orphans, and works to integrate them into society, and provides them with psychological treatment in many ways that work. To discover their talents, he treats them psychologically through theatre, drama and music; So that the child can also express himself properly. According to the attached diagrams
