

OUR HISTORY

In 2016, Blossom's Buds Network, a network of centres for children affected by HIV/AIDS in rural villages across Tamil Nadu, faced an unfortunate setback. Due to a lack of funds, this after-school program, dedicated to academic education and life skill development, had to be put on hold.

But now, since December we have been reopening our centres and we have so far reached around 150 children! Our Buds Network centres now focus on reaching all vulnerable children, with a particular focus on girls, with supplementary education and life skill development.

But we are not stopping here. Our goal is to open 50 centres in total and reach over 2,500 vulnerable children, aged 6 to 18, across Tamil Nadu with supplementary education and support.
