Title or Subject of Report	Sponsor A tree for a child's future in Bangladesh-#64070-quarterly report-#03
Project Report	One Tree for One Child: After the birth of each child, Global Community Organization reaches out to welcome new life by planting a tree at the family's home. This small act is a powerful promise - a pledge to nurture life, protect nature, and build a greener tomorrow. Each tree offers more than just beauty; it brings shade, cleaner air, food, and shelter for countless living beings. In the past three months alone, over 350 trees have taken root beside 350 newborns, standing as living symbols of hope and harmony. The journey continues, One Tree for One Child at a time. ABALAMBAN: Planting Hope, Growing Futures. The ABALAMBAN initiative is a compassionate effort to promote self-reliance among struggling families through the gift of fruit trees. After carefully verifying families with newborns and identifying those in economic hardship, the program plants fruit-bearing trees in their home yards. These trees not only promise nutrition but also open up long-term income opportunities, offering a path toward a more secure future. Over the past three months, ABALAMBAN has helped 4 families start their own small fruit gardens - humble beginnings with big dreams. With continued support, many more families will find strength and sustainability rooted in their own soil.
