

BRINGING FAMILY TOGETHER THROUGH EDUCATION

Theory classes in the auditorium of Renascer

The project Bringing Families Together Through Education went through some changes. A consulting firm specialized in popular training was hired and advised us to shift our focus from the sewing/tailoring training to the training in the area of beauty care. We have accepted and implemented the suggested changes with successful results.

Practical classes at the professional beauty parlor of Renascer

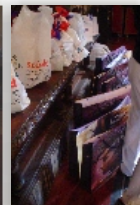

Currently this project is sponsored by the Kinder Institute (who invest financial resources in the training courses, pay the instructors and the structure) and receives the support of L'Oreal (build the beauty salon/school, provides products at cost price and offers professional training), SENAC (offered 'know how' and consulting for the beauty training) and Global Giving (provided a donation). The donation

Graduation of 60 students from the Beauty Parlor - Jun 10th 05

Representatives from L'Oréal, Senac and Renascer at the graduation.

Professional Kits given to each student at the graduation received from Global Giving will enable us to perform some important restoration and maintenance in the beauty salon, which went through infiltration problems resulting in some damages and needs repair and painting.

Recreation for children while mothers are in course or being attended.

This past Friday, June 10th, 60 students graduated from the hairdresser, coloring and manicure training (see pictures attached). Since the beginning of the Professional Project we have offered to students 1,179 work tools and 1,665 professional training courses, internal and external.
