

Our Core Values

Our core values are based on the pillars of Integrity, Transparency, Accountability, Sacrifice, Honesty, and Local Ownership. We are willing to share with CBOs and NGOs to provide services without discrimination. We are willing and able to respond to the information and accountable needs of our supporters and donors.

Current Activities

- Providing communities with health education at all levels;
- Studying village life; living conditions
- Prevalence on natural products close to the peoples lifestyles;
- Promoting community-based agro-forestry
- Promoting community-based Herbal Health clinics

Funding

THINs Annual turnover is about $30,000 mainly from service provision and information. Membership contribution comprises about 2.0%. So the large majority of our work is financed internally. However we have to be known for our quality. That is to say we are putting long hours with barebones staffing, antiquated equipment with ergonomic chairs and equipments.

Plans for the Future

We and our partners continue to rely on mission oriented Research and Development (R&D) - the quest for expanded knowledge in productive processes of different environmental factors. That will lead to viable, methods and tools for increased food production and the health of the people. We envisage a more equitable sharing of responsibilities between government, the public, the corporate world and the individual.

Who are We?

Traditional Healthcare Integration Network (THIN) is a non-governmental, non-profit, development-focused organization registered in Kenya under Healthcare Criteria.

Kenya is facing unprecedented health and care, food security, survival, unemployment, natural resources, ecological and development challenges and conflicts; despite being blessed with a wonderfully rich culture and history.

THIN is committed to make a difference. THIN and Partners have the relevant expertise and state-of-the-art communication and information; and, the science to go with. To implement multi purpose projects, give quality education, technical advice, research and training to indigenous peoples and their institution.

Our Vision

Affordable Health and care, Food security, sustainable resource base and cultural identity for posterity, assets that will give our descendants a reasonable chance to exist.

Commitment to this vision focus on our work and motivates our staff. It is a vision that recognizes the basic need of adequate food and health as an urgent priority.

Our Philosophy

First we believe that harvesting the latent possibilities which abound in the indigenous knowledge, technical expertise, is the cheapest, most appropriate means to bring about development. Secondly, participation to be of any lasting help to target groups, it must involve the intervention between ideas knowledge, skills, images resources of both. If it is based on those of outside partners alone, it will yield greater dependence and therefore defeat it's purpose.

Our Mission

To harvest, harmonize and promote indigenous knowledge, practices and resources being applied in Human, Livestock, Crop, Environmental, (Health), Agriculture, Natural resources and biodiversity preservation, Pharmaceutical enterprises, using cross-cutting science and technology for maximum application and targeting education and extension accordingly.

We accomplish this by targeting our efforts in strengthening the community-focused non-profit sector countrywide, (CBOs, NGOs) and working with Strategic partners to identify and implement participatory development approaches at the community level.

Our Goal for Communities

We are offering and facilitating total solution to peoples most threatening problems for them to be able to embrace new economic and educational opportunities of the 21st Century and beyond.

We are contributing to this goal by generating, disseminating and applying essential, applied and adaptive research, education, communication, cross-cutting science and technology. In the areas of professional, medical and public health, indigenous wisdom, social anthropology, disease transmission, environmental, biodiversity, crop, having projects in the community. delivery of products and services at the community and national level. Through these strategies we are contributing to the Millennium Development Goals. (MDGs).
