

BASAibu Wiki Annual Report

We activate young people—especially young women—to become changemakers who create real solutions for their communities. We also promote changes in the government’s behaviour and policies by consistently including young people in policymaking. Through public participation wikithons, youth not only build their civic capacity but also work with local leaders to address issues like environmental degradation, mental health, social media harms, and sexual harassment. Our work turns civic ideas into action, driving tangible improvements in people’s lives.

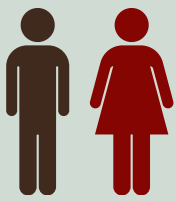

MAIN ACTIVITIES 2024-2025

We’ve been changing civic participation of Indonesian youth at the behavior and systems levels by changing norms, filling in gaps in the official youth public participation, and developing the capacity of youth and government to more effectively dialogue with one another, supported by educators, community leaders and parents.

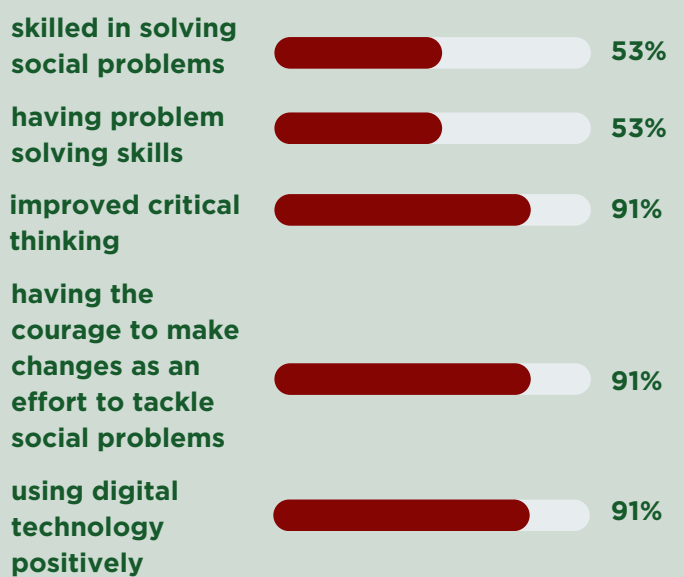

USERS

Users involved in public participation wikithons: 9,988 directly (60% women) and 143,517 indirectly participated in wikis in 4 provinces.

5 million have accessed wikis since started in 2014.

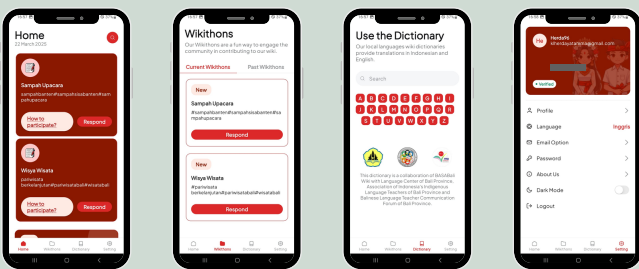

SIGNIFICANT CHANGE IN YOUTH BEHAVIOUR*

Percentage of young people who are experiencing significant attitude and behaviour change in life skills and civic participation abilities.

*based on pre-post test results of two wikithons in 2 locations for the top two, and one wikithon in one location for the rest. This does not represent changes in those who only participated in the pre or post-test.

DIGITAL PLATFORM

Community-developed digital platforms. One app for each location in the local language.

EVIDENCE OF INFLUENCE

“Young people can collaborate with the government and after participating in this youth conference, it turns out that the government welcomes all suggestions and even provides a forum or space for discussion.” (educator, South Kalimantan)

“The role of the government is important in wikithon because the government supports its implementation, and gather [the voices] the wikithon has produced” (government official, Bali)

“Young people have the potentials in how they perceive social problems. [by attending the policy dialogue] I learn that constructing a good public policy while being participatory must also flexible and adaptive [...] I have more understanding and connections with new stakeholders in solving public health issues.” (government official, South Sulawesi)

“With this poster [on prevention of sexual violence], I want to say that we should be wiser in dealing with cases of sexual violence. Also, I hope this poster can be used as an information tool to prevent sexual violence happening in society.” (female youth, West Nusa Tenggara)

WHERE WE WORK

We currently work in 4 provinces: South Kalimantan, South Sulawesi, Bali, and West Nusa Tenggara. We want to expand to other locations in the west and east part of Indonesia.
