

A Place Where Every Elder Is Known by Name

Gogo Thandi* is 79 years old. Most mornings, you will find her in the lounge at Issy Geshen Lamont Home, singing softly with the other residents before breakfast. It was not always this way.

When Gogo Thandi* arrived at the Home, she had spent years living alone, managing advancing frailty with no one to help her through the day. She had grown quiet, withdrawn and unsure of her place in the world.

At Issy Geshen Lamont Home, care begins with dignity. Gogo Thandi* was welcomed not as a frail pensioner, but as a person with a name, a history, a family and a life still worth celebrating. Today, she is supported daily by our professional caregiving team, receives the continence care and nutritious meals she needs and has found something she thought she had lost: a community that sees her.

"This is my home now," she says. "Here, I am somebody."

Gogo Thandi* is one of 69 frail elders who rely on Issy Geshen Lamont Home for their daily care. Because of your support, every one of them receives consistent access to incontinence care products, nursing support and nourishing meals, the essentials that protect health, comfort and self-worth.

But your generosity does more than meet physical needs. It creates a home where elders laugh together, where birthdays are celebrated and where growing old is met with care instead of fear. It affirms, every single day, that our elders are seen, valued and worthy of dignity.

On behalf of Gogo Thandi* and every elder whose life you have touched, thank you, for helping us be a true Home of care.

With gratitude,

The Issy Geshen Lamont Team
