

Celebrating 15 years of IIMPACT

from A Small Idea To A Huge Impact

Reliving some of the moments of the 15th anniversary celebrated on 25th February 2018

IIMPACT's successful reinvention of rural education with a focus on the 'girl child' was celebrated at Sanskriti Kendra in Anandgram, New Delhi.

President Satish Kumar and former CEO Nirmala Tandon described in detail the highlights of the 15 year journey of IIMPACT, from 12 learning centers with 360 girls in Alwar to 1648 learning centres with 51640 girls in 11 states.

The occasion was marked by the screening of the new IIMPACT film which depicted the 'before and after' situation of the girls from our centres by tracing back their lives and featured commentary by the community, parents, students and alumni.

The celebration was enhanced by the infectious enthusiasm of our girls who regaled us with their songs and folk dance performances. These girls, who had traveled all the way from their villages to share their aspirations and personal experiences, were the real 'chief guests' of the day.

Years of Service Awards were presented to 7 employees associated with IIMPACT for over 5 years by founding President Mr. Anil Tandon.

A village elder from Alwar, Mr. Jasmal Khan, recognized the importance of education in a girl's life and the gradual change brought about in the mindset of the village community. IIMPACT graduates also described how the education provided by IIMPACT transformed their lives.

A special thanks to our donors: Mr. Chetan Mehrotra, Sar-La Education Trust, Mr. Homi Gandhi, Mr. Rajiv Kohli, and Mr. Neel Mullik, for sharing their personal thoughts on IIMPACT and to all those who joined us to celebrate. To those who couldn't make it, we missed you but are ever grateful for your valuable, unstinting support.

Old African Saying: It takes a village to educate a child.
IIMPACT says: It takes a girl child to educate a village!
