A Celebration of Tradition, Art & Elegance

An Initiation of SAATH and Danfe Works

मिथिला

mithila by Danfe

Mithila by Danfe is a celebration of Mithila art at its core and the cultural representation of the Madhesh region in Nepal. We value handmade creations and engage with local artists to support their socio-economic well-being. Every piece is created and curated carefully with a lot of thought and love.

An initiation of SAATH and Danfe "Mithila by Danfe" aims to create a meaningful impact in the community. "Mithila by Danfe" represents a powerful fusion of tradition and progress, showcasing how cultural preservation can drive socio-economic development.

Mithila art, known for its vibrant colors and elaborate designs is a visual joy and a powerful expression of cultural identity and heritage. Mithila art, also called Madhubani painting, is a traditional art form from the Mithila region, covering parts of Nepal and Bihar, India. It is known for its colorful designs, intricate patterns, and connection to the culture of the region. This vibrant art form is characterized by intricate patterns, bold colors, and themes rooted in mythology, nature, and daily life.
